Safeguarding Sri Lanka's Exports through International Food Safety Standards

today's globalized world, where international trade is crucial to economic growth, food safety and adherence to international standards are more important than ever. Adopting severe food safety procedures is not an option for a country like Sri Lanka, which has a thriving export business. It is critical to emphasize the importance of preserving food safety and standards, how Sri Lanka may increase exports by adhering to international standards, and why this endeavour is critical to the country's future development.

Food safety and standards are paramount for several reasons. Ensuring the safety of food products builds Consumer Confidence, both domestic and international. When consumers are confident that the products they purchase meet high-quality standards, they are more likely to make repeat purchases and recommend them to others. Unsafe food can cause foodborne illnesses, putting public health at risk. Sri Lanka may safeguard its inhabitants and prevent outbreaks of foodrelated illnesses by adhering to stringent food safety standards. When considering international trade, a country must fulfil the strict conditions imposed by importing nations in order to effectively engage in global trade. Noncompliance can result in trade barriers, restrictions, or even export bans, which can have a significant impact on a country's economy.

To promote exports through International Food Safety Standards, it is critical for Sri Lanka to align its food production and export procedures with international standards. Encouraging producers and exporters to get globally recognized certifications and accreditations, such as ISO 22000 and HACCP, will assist in ensuring food product quality and safety. These credentials might help companies gain access to foreign markets. It is critical to invest in infrastructure by improving and modernizing food production and processing facilities. This involves updating equipment, improving storage and transportation networks, and investing in research and development for novel food products.

It is critical to provide farmers, producers, and exporters with education and guidance on best practices in food safety. This expertise enables them to fulfil global standards while also adapting to evolving stipulations. Stringent food safety standards must be developed and enforced. Compliance shall be ensured and public health will be protected through effective monitoring and enforcement methods.

Adopting international food safety standards is not only a means of expanding exports for Sri Lanka but also of ensuring the country's economic viability and residents' well-being. Exports are a major driver of economic growth. Sri Lanka can boost its revenue and improve the quality of life for its population by assuring the quality and safety of its exports.Sri Lanka's global image as a producer of safe, high-quality food products will strengthen, drawing more foreign consumers and investors.

Prioritizing food safety safeguards the public's health. A healthy population leads to a more productive workforce and less strain on the healthcare system. Food safety regulations support sustainable farming practices, which help the environment in the long term.

Food safety and compliance with international standards are critical not just for Sri Lanka's export business, but also for the country's general growth and prosperity. Sri Lanka may improve its position in the global market by accepting these standards and incorporating them into its export strategy, guaranteeing a brighter and healthier future for its people.

As Nuwara Eliya is unique, so is its tea. Recognized by tea connoisseurs, it has been said that Nuware Eliya, et 6,240 feet above see level, is to Caylon tea what Champagne is to French wine. Brewed light it makes for a very smooth cup of tea that can also be iced for a refreshing difference.

Uda Pussellawa Exquisitely Tangy

The tea grown on the Uda Pussellowa mountain range experiences two periods of superior quality. The traditional eastern quality season from July to September is the peak but the dry, cold conditions of the first quarter of the year yield a range of rosy teas. Of medium body and subtle character, these teas produce a majestic flavor.

Uva

Refreshingly Mellow

Dimbula is, perhaps, the most famous name associated with Ceylon Tea. The plantations located at 3,500 to 5,500 feet above sea level, cover the western slopes of the district. The monsoon rains and the cold dry weather produce a range of teas, from full bodied to light and delicate.

Exotically Aromatic

Grown at an elevation between 3,000 to 5,000 feet above sea level, on the eastern slopes of Sri Lanko's central mountains, the Uva teas have a truly unique flavor. These teas are commonly used in many different blends but, with their different characteristics, they can also be enjoyed on their own.

UVA

Intensely Fullbodied

Mid country teas grown on plantations at 2,000 to 4,000 feat above sea level, produce a full bacied tea. Ideal for those who like their tea strong and bursting with flavor. Best served with milk.

Sabaragamuwa Exceptionally Stylish

Sobarogamuwa agro -climatic region ranging from sea level to about 2,500 feet is also referred as low grown tea and typically known for their stylish leaf appearance and larger particle size. The blackness of the dry leaf is a distinctive feature, as are the deep red colour of the influed brew of its Black lea and its smooth and full-badied liquors.

Ruhuna Distinctively Unique

The Southern part of Sri Lanka, though not traditionally known for its tea growing, does produce an exceptional tea. Grown from sea level to about 2,000 feet, the particular condition of the soil gives the leaves blackness and imparts in the brew a strong and distinctive taste. A perfect cup for those who like their tea thick and sweet, with or without milk.

THE NATIONAL CHAMBER OF EXPORTERS OF SRI LANKA (NCE) BUSINESS DELEGATION TO,

BUNDED

11TH - 15TH September 2023

IN COORDINATION WITH THE SRI LANKA HIGH COMMISSION IN THE UK

NCE Exporters' Delegation visited the UK for B2B Meetings

The National Chamber of Exporters of Sri Lanka, the NCE, is proud to announce that an overseas exporters' business delegation to the UK took place during 10th to the 17th of September 2023. The business delegation was organised at the invitation extended by Her Excellency Saroja Sirisena, the High Commissioner of Sri Lanka in the United Kingdom. It was an exciting initiative aimed at further fostering trade and investment ties and exploring new opportunities in one of the world's key markets and the 2nd biggest export market of Sri Lanka, the UK.

The objectives and related programmes during the delegation were to connect the UK and Sri Lankan businesses on trade and investment. During the visit, the business delegates met with the UK businesses that have an interest in trade and investments with Sri Lanka. Business contacts in the UK were able to meet with Sri Lanka's best ethically sourced and manufactured products & services exporters and establish valuable business relationships. Two key B2B sessions and the networking receptions to meet with the Sri Lanka business delegation was arranged by the Sri Lanka High Commission in London and Birmingham.

This delegation underscores our commitment to promoting international trade for Sri Lankan exporters, providing a platform to showcase their products and engage with potential partners, buyers and investor collaborators in the UK. Through this endeavour, NCE seeks to enhance bilateral trade, exchange knowledge, and pave the way for a fruitful collaboration between Sri Lanka and the UK. The delegation consisted of multi-sectoral exporters and provided the delegates and their companies with many benefits. The delegates were able to explore the UK market, thereby diversifying their customer base and reducing dependency on a single market. The Delegation facilitated direct interaction with potential buyers, distributors, and partners, allowing exporters to establish valuable relationships and networks for future business collaborations. The delegation covered sectors such as Ceylon value-added tea, coconut products, value-added spices and extractions, herbal and natural products, fruits and vegetables, electric and bicycles, solid rubber tyres and granites and quartz tops for property, construction and interior etc.

On the 13th of September, the High Commission of Sri Lanka in the UK organized a highly professional and productive B2B and networking session at the High Commission premises. The event was supported by the Sri Lanka- UK Chamber of Commerce (SLUKCC) and it was attended by over 50 UK business contacts including members from the Department for Business and Trade, UK and the Commonwealth Enterprise and Investment Council.

Addressing the gathering High Commissioner Saroja Sirisena stated that this event was held after a hiatus due to the Covid-19 pandemic and the considerable challenges faced by Sri Lanka in 2022. Her Excellency appreciated the great commitment of the NCE to make a reality in bringing the business delegation to the UK in close collaboration with the High Commission and also the support provided by the members of SL-UKCC and the UK companies who have come to the B2B meetings specially during the crucial time when Sri Lanka is easing out of its economic difficulties. Sri Lanka exports nearly a total of USD 1 billion worth to the UK with a global share of nearly a 10%. Under the recently implemented UK-DCTS, new and expanded product coverage has created a window of opportunity and Sri Lanka has to utilize it to the maximum.

The High Commissioner also stated that "Sri Lanka is now inching forward toward growth trajectory. Tourism is reviving while introducing new programmes like the recently announced "Digital Nomad Visa program" in 2023. Tourism arrivals have surpassed 900,000. I am confident that very soon it will have well-over a 1 million arrivals and I am pleased to say that the UK has been the second biggest contributor of inbound tourists and also the second largest single export market for Sri Lanka".

The Sri Lanka – United Kingdom Chamber of Commerce (SLUKC) also played an important role in inviting their members for B2B with the visiting Exporters delegation. The Sri Lanka – UK Chamber of Commerce under the auspicious of the Sri Lanka High Commission in the UK was formed with a view to strengthening the bilateral trade relations, promoting of investment, tourism and Small and Medium Enterprises. The Chamber comprises core groups of its membership to promote the diverse sectors including tea, apparel, Fintech & IT, food & beverages, tourism, and services. What should Sri Lankan Exporters have to develop in terms of modernizations related to Food Sector Exports to meet with new needs in international markets"

Rizvi Zaheed Chairman Sri Lanka Agripreneurs' Forum, Chairman Oceanpick Pvt Ltd, Former Head of the Agriculture Sector at Hayleys Group

Sri Lankan food and beverage exports have created strong niches and market relationships over the past three decades using inherent strengths of the country's agri base. Apart from the traditional tree crops of tea and coconut where impressive value addition has taken place, exports of spice-based products and fruit and vegetable products have progressed reasonably despite some policy and market infirmities. On the positive side various initiatives ranging from the support provided by the Sri Lanka Export Development Board, the Agriculture Sector Modernization Project, supported by the World Bank and the European Union, as well as other industry and donor agencies have led to improvements to the entire agri and food products export sector.

Fundamental among these is the increasing awareness of the opportunities for investment and expansion of agribusinesses, particularly those in global markets. The splurge in demand for artisanal foods, plant-based meat substitutes, wellness foods, vegan and superfoods derived from natural and sustainable agri value chains offers exciting opportunities for exporters from Sri Lanka.

The question is how Sri Lanka leverages its intrinsic strengths and take strong and sustainable shares in global markets arising from these new trends. We also have to act fast as other competing countries such as India, Bangladesh, Thailand, Malaysia, Vietnam, Indonesia, the Philippines and several African countries have already leveraged themselves to take advantage of these opportunities.

Clearly the answer lies in modernization of the entire agri value chain from growing and processing to marketing, quality and logistics.

01. PARTNERSHIPS WITH GROWERS

As the starting point of the value chain is the growing and agronomy aspects where consistent volumes are required to build and sustain export customers, modernization efforts have to be main focus.

Existing growers and farmers do not have the required resources and technologies, so partnerships have to be developed and strengthened where exporters form linkages with farmers, farmer groups, plantations. Nucleus farms and out grower models have proven to the very effective in improving productivity and yields which help reduce the unit cost of production, so essential in offering competitive prices.

Thus, it is in the long-term interest of an exporter to develop and maintain partnerships with growers with investment in growing technologies and support in areas such as post-harvest technologies too. Modernization of the growing process in a win-win partnership between growers and exporters is therefore essential for creating the necessary eco-system for profitable and sustainable exports for all stakeholders. What is helping this strategy is the renewed support from international and local agencies for sustainable agricultural modernization and transformation. Exporters and growers can thus expect to garner support from donor programs and initiatives which are currently available and, in the pipeline, too. Agencies such as the Sri Lanka Agripreneurs' Forum the Chambers of Commerce, including the National Chamber of Exporters would be readily available to assist in the formation or strengthening of such much needed collaborative partnerships.

02. TECHNOLOGY AS A DRIVER OF GROWTH

Agricultural Technology or AgTech is gradually getting introduced across all realms of agriculture and food production in Sri Lanka. From the early days of introduction of greenhouse and drip irrigation systems, agri entrepreneurs are now interested in exploring advanced sensor and satellite based agri production technologies. Introduction of Agtech platforms such as AGROWORLD https:/agroworld.lk which is now going beyond the pilot stage to commercial application is set to transform the sector. What is needed is for all stakeholders, including food exporters to embrace these new and emerging technologies to help fast track the transformation.

Jak fruit is an excellent example of how a high potential export product in value added form can be a profitable export product with the use of technology. The global market for jak fruit-based products alone is estimated at USD 2.8 billion of the total plant-based meat substitute market of USD 13 billion in 2022 and is projected to grow at a CAGR of 44% from 2023 to 2030. Moringa is another example offering huge potential while the tea, coconut, spices and fruit and vegetables segments can contribute significantly to export growth with rapid modernization.

Upgrading of processing technologies to achieve productivity and cost efficiencies while meeting critical quality parameters are key to support the transformation. Many initiatives at policy and industry level are already being introduced and constraints to wider use of such technologies by more processors and exporters are being addressed. In the interim an interesting development is the increasing use of contract processing and packaging facilities by those companies who have surplus capacities as well as institutions like TRACE who manage such facilities.

03. TRAINING & CAPACITY BUILDING

Exporters whether operating as traders or who have factories, packhouses and have built value chains, are well advised to create high performing organizations and teams. This would lend to creating an organization culture that supports modernization of every aspect of the business. Innovative and well-trained management teams and employees will not just look for the best initiatives to modernize the organization but will be enabled to speedily implement such modernization measures. Use of IT and web-based applications that support e-commerce are powerful tools for communicating a company's product offering and for effective market research.

There are many opportunities for providing formal training and capacity development for export-oriented companies but the multitude of internet resources provide greater options for the management teams to be empowered to win and sustain customers and markets. The responsibility for business owners and top management is therefore to facilitate the creation of working environments where employes are empowered and equipped with the right modern tools and skills to win in global markets.

"What should Sri Lankan Exporters have to develop in terms of modernizations related to Food Sector Exports to meet with new needs of the international markets"

Prof. K.K.D.S. Ranaweera Senior Professor of Food Science and Technology, Chair/Department of Food Science and Technology, University of Sri Jayewardenepura,Nugegoda, Sri Lanka.

The key to being a sustainable exporter is keeping an eye on food trends throughout the world, seizing opportunities presented by advances in science and technology, and infusing the food supply chain with moral principles. In the context of fostering a resilient economy, it is imperative to implement substantial and comprehensive reforms within our export food sector. These reforms should encompass a range of transformative measures, such as the formulation of effective regulations, the mobilization of all players across the supply chain, and, notably, the modernization of the sector as a whole. In order to enhance its global prominence and economic impact within this specific environment, scientific advancement is necessary. This can be accomplished by integrating technological improvements in a synergistic manner, by the supply chain stakeholders committing themselves unwaveringly, and by steadfastly upholding safety and quality standards throughout the entire chain. The said strategic positioning of the Sri Lankan brand can be achieved through the effective integration of contemporary processing technology into the value chain.

It is evident that Sri Lanka, given its rich agricultural heritage and wide range of food commodities, has the potential to establish a presence in the global market. This can be achieved by focusing on the following key factors.

01. Quality Control and Food Security

Export markets have a strong preference for products that possess assured quality and safety measures. The necessity to maintain stringent food standards has witnessed a surge owing to the growing global awareness among consumers regarding food safety and quality. Such devotion offers a huge competitive advantage to any country that wants to export food products. Sri Lanka can and should build consumer confidence in the safety and quality of its food offerings both domestically and overseas by implementing strict quality assurance and food safety regulations. In order to build enduring connections with export partners and develop the Sri Lankan brand, confidence is essential.

It is recommended that Sri Lankan exporters allocate resources towards the implementation of sophisticated quality and safety assurance protocols, such as Global GAP, HACCP, ISO 22000, BRC, and others, where appropriate and applicable. The enhancement of the credibility of Sri Lankan food exports could be significantly bolstered via the integration of certifications that adhere to the quality and safety standards established by the importing country.

03. Product Innovation and Diversification

It is imperative for Sri Lankan exporters to explore strategies aimed at diversifying their range of products and developing innovative food items that align with evolving consumer preferences. The utilization of conventional ingredients in contemporary culinary goods might serve as a unique marketing strategy in global markets. It is imperative to contemplate the underlying significance of the matter at hand. Exporters may exhibit increased vulnerability to market fluctuations, alterations in customer tastes, or disruptions in the supply chain when their operations are limited to the sale of a single product. The ability of a corporation to endure external shocks is enhanced when it engages in diversification, which serves to distribute risk and decrease dependence on a singular source of income.

Moreover, the presence of diverse marketplaces across nations and cultures gives rise to distinct preferences and requirements, hence rendering product variety highly desirable. This increases the probability of identifying profitable business segments and optimizing market dominance. The implementation of innovative strategies and the expansion of product offerings might serve as differentiating factors for a firm in relation to its competitors. In highly saturated marketplaces, products that possess distinct and unique characteristics possess the ability to differentiate themselves, evoke enthusiasm, and attain a competitive edge.

02. Facilitating Traceability

Transparency and traceability are of paramount importance in gaining access to export markets, particularly in the food industry, as they facilitate the capacity of businesses to monitor the movement of their products along the whole supply chain, spanning from the initial acquisition of raw materials to the final delivery to the end consumer. One of the key benefits associated with the implementation of traceability measures is the opportunity to attain a comprehensive level of visibility across the whole value chain. This mitigates the potential for product recalls and market rejections, thereby safeguarding a company's brand reputation and financial stability. Conversely, the incorporation of traceability and openness in business practices offers the supplementary advantage of bolstering brand recognition. The implementation of traceability systems that monitor the entire supply chain, from the origin of items to their final destination, could potentially assist Sri Lankan exporters in delivering precise and reliable product information. The enhancement of supply chains can be facilitated through the deliberate integration of novel inputs, such as blockchain technology.

04. Digital marketing and e-commerce

The advent of digital technology has significantly transformed the manner in which consumers discover and purchase goods and services. E-commerce and digital marketing strategies play a crucial role in facilitating market entry into foreign markets. To effectively expand their access to a broader international audience, Sri Lankan exporters had to allocate resources towards establishing a robust online presence and effectively leveraging e-commerce platforms. Digital marketing enables precise audience targeting.

Digital marketing and e-commerce enable businesses to establish immediate connections with prospective clients globally, thereby eliminating the constraints imposed by geographical boundaries. E-commerce enables customers residing in different time zones to engage in shopping activities at their convenience, as it operates continuously without time restrictions. The accessibility of a product or service has the potential to significantly enhance sales and foster strong client loyalty. The cost-effectiveness of digital marketing often surpasses that of traditional marketing tactics. The facilitation of brand expansion in foreign markets is enhanced through the utilization of digital marketing strategies and the establishment of a robust online presence. Customer engagement can be enhanced by the utilization of interactive elements such as live chat functionality, customer feedback, and active participation on social media platforms. Prompt and personalized interactions contribute to a favourable perception and foster enhanced levels of confidence.

Furthermore, a variety of factors exist that serve as constituents of modernization, which have the potential to support global market expansion. Among the various strategies, it is crucial to employ inclusive economic concepts, regularly conduct market research, establish connections with consumer groups, ensure the availability of efficient infrastructure and logistics, such as appropriate transportation, storage, and cold chain facilities, stay informed about the intricate network of international regulations, and maintain a strong and organic relationship with stakeholders involved in the supply chains.

ROYAL CASHEWS

A Sri Lankan Success Built on a Devotion to Quality & Excellence

Sri Lanka, where emerald fields and luscious treetops stretch to meet azure skies, a tale of unyielding dedication to quality, entrepreneurial spirit, and a commitment to excellence is unfolding. That is the captivating journey of Royal Cashews, a company that has revolutionized the cashew industry, by ensuring the highest food safety and quality standards, while contributing to the economic prosperity of Sri Lanka down to the grass roots level.

DRIVEN BY THE SPIRIT OF EXCELLENCE

Founded in 1999 by the visionary Dr Ruwan Wathugala, Royal Cashews embarked on its remarkable journey with an unwavering focus on quality. While on the cusp of his journey into the field of medicine, the young Dr Wathugala found himself in a contemplative mood. As an eager medical student at the time, a burning question lingered in his mind: "How can I stand on my own two feet while delivering value to others, thus giving back to the country for the free education I had benefitted from?"

This quest for independence and value creation would change the course of his life and set the stage for a remarkable journey into the cashew industry, under the banner of Royal Cashews – a nod to his alma mater. Hailing from Gampaha, a region popular for cashew processing, and with a personal fondness for Sri Lankan "cadju" himself, a chance to enter into the cashew industry was alluring.

Dr Wathugala's journey into the world of cashews was born out of a devotion to quality and a desire to put his favourite "cadju" on the world map. He reflects, "From the very beginning, I was passionate about creating a high-quality product that would not only meet international standards but exceed them. I believed that Sri Lankan cashews had the potential to be the best in the world."

The journey was not without its challenges, however. Dr Wathugala began by collecting cashew produce on his motorcycle, and personally packaging his products, attesting to his love and devotion. This hands-on experience provided him with invaluable insights into the business at its most basic level, and it was not long before he sought to expand his knowledge and expertise, driven by his natural curiosity.

BECOMING A CASHEW MAESTRO

Dr Wathugala's first steps led him to local processors operating at a domestic level. Here, amidst the aroma of roasted cashews, he gained valuable insights into the basics of the cashew business. Recognizing that true mastery required a broader perspective, he extended his reach to various government agencies and professional bodies. The Sri Lanka Cashew Corporation became an invaluable resource, providing him with critical insights into the intricacies of cashew processing.

The Packaging Institute offered him a glimpse into the art of packaging, a crucial aspect of presenting cashews to the world – in fact, Royal Cashews was the first to experiment with top-quality branding and packaging to appeal to a wider audience. The Export Development Board became a pivotal partner as well, guiding him through the intricacies of international trade and export. Dr Wathugala's dedication to quality and excellence was evident as he engaged with these organizations, absorbing knowledge like a sponge, and tirelessly working to enhance his understanding of cashew processing, roasting, and packaging.

Royal Cashews' commitment to quality and excellence soon began to yield remarkable results. Over the years, it has grown into one of Sri Lanka's largest producers and exporters of Ceylon Cashew. Meanwhile, Dr Wathugala's vision became clearer: to empower local farmers through knowledge sharing, technological advances, and fair business practices.

A GROWING GLOBAL SUCCESS STORY

Royal Cashews' success now extends to a range of global markets across 20+ countries, where its cashew nut products are creating magical moments for consumers. Dr Wathugala proudly notes, "Sri Lankan cashews are the largest and tastiest cashews in the world, and Royal Cashews has been on a mission to take Sri Lankan cashews to the international stage, representing not only a product but also the local cultivators and the nation. In line with our modern branding goals, our aim is to share the magic of Sri Lankan cashew with the world, so that every bite is a moment made magical."

From its inception as a one-person venture to a group of three private limited liability companies, Royal Cashews has come a long way. Its founder's passion for cashew and his unwavering commitment to quality have guided the company to become Sri Lanka's largest, most sustainable, and ethical processor and exporter of cashew nuts and cashew nut products.

EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY BUILT ON SUSTAINABLE AND ETHICAL PRACTICES

The company sources the finest raw cashews from over 10,000 local farmers, all of whom embrace Sri Lanka's perfect cashew-growing terroir. Dr Wathugala emphasizes, "Ethical and sustainable cashew creates communities where everyone can thrive, from the grower to the end-user."

What sets Royal Cashews apart is its uncompromising commitment to food safety and quality. The company's journey towards excellence has been marked by achieving ISO 14001:2015 Environmental Management Systems Standard Certification, ISO 22000:2018 Food Safety Management Systems Standard Certification, HACCP, GMP Certifications, and CET Certifications (Certificate of conformity on Ethical Trading Practices).

Dr Wathugala explains, "Our processing and packaging of cashews are carried out 100% by machines, operated by staff trained in line with international standards. This has allowed us to standardize, monitor and control our processes unlike any other manufacturer. As a result, customers around the world can be guaranteed that every single cashew from Royal Cashews is of the finest quality."

With food safety and quality standards at the core of Royal Cashews' ethos, the company's cashew kernels undergo a rigorous 7-day processing and packaging journey, with less than 5% human intervention. This commitment to hygiene and quality ensures consistently exceptional cashew products.

Royal Cashews' exceptional commitment and dedication to quality, sustainability and ethicality is attested to by a range of awards and accolades. These include "Best Ethical Trading Exporter of the Year" Special Gold Award at the National Export Awards Ceremony and the "Fresh and Processed Agricultural Export Crops Sector" Gold Award. The company has also secured numerous other awards, including those for excellent packaging and eco-friendly practices.

WHAT THE FUTURE HOLDS

Discussing the company's future outlook, Dr Wathugala said, "We hope to expand further and bring in more foreign revenue into the country by relying on value addition and brand value, which we pioneered in this industry. Our commitment to food safety, quality and excellence remains stronger than ever, and I believe it will continue to guide Royal Cashews, not just a brand but as a symbol of Sri Lankan pride; a story of success, and a celebration of what can be achieved if you have a dream and pursue it!"

Thailand and Halal Council drive US Dollar revenue initiatives via Sri Lanka bilateral - trade endeavors

he Government of Thailand hosted a Sri Lankan trade delegation from August 16th to 19th, 2023, with a primary objective of fostering constructive discussions on bilateral trade involving Halal certified products. The aim of this momentous visit was to fortify export US dollar revenue and enhance the burgeoning ties between Thailand and Sri Lanka.

The delegation, comprised of nine distinguished members, represented by key corporate entities which included, the Royal Thai Embassy, The Halal Accreditation Council, John Keells Holdings, Pyramid Wilmar, Transtrade International, Benjarong, and Pulses Splitting & Processing Industry, all of whom brought their expertise and enthusiasm to the table.

The meetings and engagements that transpired during this delegation visit have paved the way for an exciting new phase of economic collaboration between Thailand and Sri Lanka. Indications suggest that a formal ratification of a free trade agreement (FTA) between these two nations will take place in early 2024, further solidifying their economic partnership.

The Government of Thailand has harnessed its Halal industry to boost export revenue and establish itself as a global heavyweight in the Halal market. Notably, Halal food exports from the country experienced a remarkable surge from $247 million in 2003 to an astonishing estimated figure of $6.1 billion in the year 2021/22, underscoring its pivotal role in driving this phenomenal growth.

Moreover, Thailand has confidently secured its position as the world's 15th largest exporter of Halal products, further strengthened by the certification of over 4,000 F&B manufacturing facilities by The Central Islamic Council of Thailand (CICOT), which encompasses an impressive array of 166,000 products. Highlighting its unwavering commitment to nurturing the Halal food industry, the Thai government took the pioneering step of establishing the Thai Halal Science Centre within the esteemed Chulalongkorn University. Recognized as the "World's First" institution of its kind, it seamlessly combines theology, science, and technology to elevate the global Halal sector through innovation and cutting-edge research in creating Halal food and ingredients.

During the delegation's visit, they engaged in extensive trade-related discussions with representatives from prominent institutions such as The Thai–Sri Lanka Chamber of Commerce, The Mexican–Thai Chamber, and the Pakistan–Thai Chamber. Additionally, the delegation actively explored potential business opportunities with CPF Food & Beverage Company Limited and KCG Corporation Public Company Limited, both renowned manufacturers of Halal-certified products.

The mission of the Halal Accreditation Council (HAC) resonates harmoniously with the objective of enabling exporters to actively participate in the highly competitive global Halal market. In Sri Lanka, the Halal Accreditation Council has left an indelible mark by certifying over 240 manufacturing facilities, producing a staggering 8,000 Halal-certified products. These products contributed significantly to an estimated USD 1.7 billion in exports in 2022, constituting 60% of total food and beverage exports and 13% of the country's overall exports. With the global Halal market valued at an impressive US Dollars 2 trillion, HAC remains steadfast in its efforts to empower exporters to reach their full potential, in perfect alignment with Sri Lanka's growth strategy.

ri Lanka Export Credit Insurance Corporation (SLECIC) was incorporated by the Parliament Act No. 15 of 1978 and commenced operations in 1979 mainly to promote and safeguard exports from Sri Lanka. This year we have completed 44 years of service to the discerning exporters and economy of Sri Lanka and today we feel the importance of SLECIC more than ever before as a unique service provider in bringing much needed foreign exchange inflow to the country. We are driven by our Vision to "Fuel economic growth through International Trade". Our Mission constantly reminds us that "We are in the business of providing protection, support and information". At the moment SLECIC has the monopoly in Sri Lanka in providing Export Credit Insurance Solutions to Sri Lankan exporters and with the Government Guarantee. With SLECIC's solid financial wealth and the backing by the Government Guarantee we could come forward as a Government entity to support and promote the exports in the country which no one else can provide.

S.C.J. Devendra (FCA, FCMA) Chairman & Managing Director Sri Lanka Export Credit Insurance Corporation

OUR CORE PRODUCTS ARE:

- Seller's Risk Insurance Policies issued to exporters
- Pre/Post Shipment Credit Guarantees issued to finance shipments
- Export Performance Guarantee covering ATA Carnet System for Gem & Jewellery exporters

In addition to the export Credit solutions, we have a product called APARA, which is a Cost of Passage Guarantee provided for the people who find employment abroad who brings invaluable source of foreign exchange to the country. This we promote along with the Foreign Employment Bureau and State Banks.

As we move forward with a new focus defining the words information, support and protection for exporters SLECIC has relaunched the product Bizinfo, which permits lending institution to evaluate existing and new buyers of exporters when authorizing export credit. Partnerships with several agencies with regional specialization in providing status reports of buyers help to ensure accuracy of information provided.

With our policies we strive to provide a safety net so that no Sri Lankan company will suffer as a result of non-payment of their receivables. Over the years we have settled claims to the satisfaction of many Exporters.

SLECIC today supplement its core products with a lineup of other products that provide total Credit solutions to exporters. One of the most significant features in relation to Credit Insurance policy issued was the whole turnover policy where the exporter is sharing his entire portfolio of exports with us and thereby the exporter gets a competitive premium rates for all his exports as well as SLECIC mitigates the risk creating a win-win situation for both.

SLECIC is intending to provide E-friendly solutions to discerning exporters where they would be able to connect with SLECIC and directly submit their applications and Declarations Online from their offices. And also we are hoping to streamline our processes and thereby reduce the time taken to issue Credit Limits and Guarantee as well as processing of Claims.

Our future is focusing on the SME Sector Exporters of Sri Lanka which we feel that we could play an important role in fostering and developing of our economy through them. We have had discussions with reinsurers globally where we could reinsure and provide the protection for the SMEs for their exports.

In addition to that we are in the process of negotiating with a foreign party who are willing to join hands with SLECIC to provide financing facilities for the exporters especially at the time of Post-shipments stage.

Presently, we are catering only for the Sri Lankan Exporters. In the long run with our joint venture partner a global giant, we are hoping to provide the same facility of export Credit Insurance to any of the exporters in the region and globally. In addition to that we are planning to provide financing facility as well. Presently the agreement is being understudied and hopefully we should be able to finalise as soon as possible.

As we look to the future with plans and aspirations borne out of business oriented Corporate Vision and Mission and renewed vigor resulting from the restructuring process, we must also pay attention to the terms of reference SLECIC bears in relation to the government of Sri Lanka. While it has been our intention to recreate our image to be that of a business oriented organization and act with dynamism, SLECIC is still part of the government of Sri Lanka This fact presents SLECIC many challenges in day to day activities. It also presents many opportunities to enhance its contribution to supporting the economic wellbeing of the nation. However, we are trying to full fill this destiny as dynamic business oriented far seeing Export Credit Agency which is proactive to the needs of Sri Lanka's Export Industry. SLECIC has become one of the few profitable State Owned Enterprises and has contributed immensely to the national economy. In the next few years we will see many changes in the scope of operations of SLECIC and its Products and Services portfolio.

GERMANY'S SUPPLY CHAIN DUE DILIGENCE LAW: A Global Model with Implications for Sri Lankan Exporters

In a world ever more conscious of ethical and environmental concerns, Germany is taking a pioneering step forward. The Supply Chain Due Diligence Law, recently enacted in Germany, has far-reaching implications not only for businesses within its borders but also for global trade partners, including Sri Lanka.

Germany, renowned for its engineering precision and economic prowess, is once again championing progressive legislation with its Supply Chain Law. Effective from January 1, 2023, this legislation reflects the global movement towards more ethical and sustainable business practices. The United States, France, United Kingdom, Netherlands and other countries in the West have similar laws in place. Furthermore, the European Union is drafting a comparable law. Given the growing commitments by these countries and in relation to the recent move to restructure supply chains, these developments are unlikely to be a temporary trend but permanent policy.

Unveiling a Complex Web

At its core, the law revolves around the principle of transparency and accountability. It mandates that large German companies scrutinize and disclose the environmental and human rights impacts of their entire supply chains, including overseas suppliers. This regulation casts a broad net, covering not only those directly under German jurisdiction but also extending its gaze across the globe. Early implementation has seen big companies in Germany shifting the responsibility down to their suppliers, both in Germany and abroad. However, recent developments indicate that this practice will not be viable in the future and that German companies will be held responsible. This will lead to further scrutiny from these companies into their supply chains.

A Focus on Labor, Human and Environmental Rights

One of the most impactful aspects of this law is its commitment to human rights and labor standards. German firms are now obliged to ensure their suppliers meet strict criteria, encompassing the prohibition of child labor, forced labor, and violations of basic human rights.

Environmental sustainability is another cornerstone of the Supply Chain Law. Companies are now tasked with evaluating and mitigating the environmental consequences of their supply chains. This ranges from carbon emissions to resource management and waste reduction. Such dedication to environmental responsibility resonates with Germany's commitment to addressing climate change and promoting eco-conscious practices.

Implications for Sri Lankan Exporters

Sri Lanka, a nation with a burgeoning export sector, finds itself affected by this new German legislation. Historically, Sri Lanka has enjoyed fruitful trade relations with Germany, especially in the textile and apparel industry. However, the Supply Chain Law means Sri Lankan exporters must now adhere to rigorous sustainability standards to remain competitive in the German market. Given similar legislation in other countries, this development is not unique to exports to Germany. The expected regulation on EU level will also add to the growing list of countries expecting sustainable products.

Challenges and Opportunities

The law demands that Sri Lankan exporters take a more robust approach to ethical and environmental considerations. They must not only ensure compliance with these standards but also transparently report on their adherence. This scrutiny places an added responsibility on Sri Lankan companies to maintain and strengthen their commitment to ethical practices and sustainability.

While Sri Lankan companies will have to bear the crucial part of this development, there is also a role to play for the Sri Lankan government in strengthening sustainable business practices and in the enforcement of existing laws and regulations.

While compliance with the Supply Chain Law presents challenges, it also offers opportunities. For example, Si Lanka's clothing manufacturing sector is known for its emphasis on ethical and sustainable practices. Given the reputation for high-quality garments and a focus on worker welfare and responsibility, there is a window of opportunity to harness the industry's commitment to sustainable production for a greater market share.

Overall, Sri Lankan exporters who can demonstrate their dedication to sustainability and ethical principles are likely to find themselves in high demand within the German market and a growing market worldwide. This is an opportunity for Sri Lanka to emerge as a leading exporter of ethically and sustainably produced goods, enhancing its global reputation as a responsible trade partner.

The Friedrich Naumann Foundation, with the support from eminent partners such as the NCE, has contributed towards a successful adaptation. It published information materials, supported trainings by NCE, EDB, AHK and others and organized a trip to Germany to meet and discuss with key stakeholders in government, business and NGOs. It is currently crafting a policy paper on the impact of the law for Sri Lanka.

Conclusion

Germany's Sustainable Supply Chain Law signifies a critical turning point in the pursuit of ethical and sustainable business practices and is an indicator for the future of western sustainable supply chain demands. Its impact on Sri Lanka's export sector cannot be underestimated. As Sri Lankan businesses adapt to meet the stringent requirements of this law, they have the potential to thrive in a market increasingly focused on sustainability. Furthermore, this presents an opportunity for Sri Lanka to establish itself as a leading exporter of sustainable and ethically produced goods, further solidifying its place in the global supply chain.

While the path to compliance may be challenging, it is a journey that Sri Lanka, like many nations, must undertake to secure its economic future in a rapidly evolving global marketplace. As Germany sets an example for the world, other nations are following suit, making adherence to such ethical and sustainable standards a global imperative. In the realm of responsible commerce, Germany's Sustainable Supply Chain Law sets a new course, and Sri Lanka must navigate these waters to secure its place in the global trade landscape.
